SENT-FORTH

The Acting Vice-Chancellor, Prof Humphrey A. Ogoni, on behalf of Management and the entire University thanked Prof Raphael Orumabo, for his contributions to the development of the College of Health Sciences and the entire University. According to the Vice-Chancellor, the Professor’s achievements were made possible because he had an understanding wife, who within that period deprived herself of the being with her husband.

Prof Humphrey A. Ogoni, on behalf of Management, formally sent forth the out-gone Provost, of the College of Health Sciences last week. The ceremony which took place in the Vice-Chancellor’s Conference Room on Friday, May 18, 2013, had in attendance all Principal Officers of the University, Deans/Directors and Heads of Academic and Non-Academic Department.

The Current Provost, Prof Kobina K. Imananagha while counting the achievements of the College, informed the out-gone Provost that the College of Health Sciences, has been able to get approval for its “court of Governors” which was one of the legacies of the out-gone Provost. He also used the opportunity to formally inform Chief (Prof) Orumabo, that the College had inducted its 1st Medical Doctors and will be inducting the next set (popularly known as “Benin Doctors”) on the 23rd of May, 2013.

In his response, Prof Orumabo, thanked the University Management for their cooperation during his tenure as Provost of the College of Health Sciences, and that he still sees himself as part of the Niger Delta University, which he believes will one day be amongst the World Class Universities.

INDUCTION

The Association of University Professional Administrators (ANUPA) on Thursday, May 17, 2013, held its induction ceremony for its new members in the Vice-Chancellor’s Conference Room.

The Special Assistant to the Acting Vice-Chancellor, Sir E Kenekayero, a Deputy Registrar, admonished the new inductees of the expectation of a Professional Administrator in a University, which according him includes proper understanding of the University system, the laws and the role of the Registry. Also, Mr Taiwo Salibo, a Principal Assistant Registrar advised and reminded members of the expected role of being exemplary to their junior colleagues by coming to work early and in their general attitude to work.
